SYNOPSIS

Mischievously self-assured Mára and somewhat eccentric Heduš set out into the frozen wastes in search of adventure - by car, naturally. After all, Mára's turning fifteen soon. A road movie about the flies that occasionally buzz around even in winter, and a story - before it ends at the police station - that tells of the elusive bond of boyhood friendship and the irrepressible desire to experience something, even if you don't exactly know what.

OLMO OMERZU

DIRECTOR

The director Olmo Omerzu was born in 1984 in Ljubljana. During his studies at FAMU in Prague he directed several short films and a 40-minute feature THE SECOND ACT (Druhé dějství). It tells a story of a couple that goes on a long overdue honeymoon only to discover it is too late. It was shown and awarded at several European festivals, and distributed in Czech, Slovak and Slovenian cinemas.

In 2011, Omerzu graduated from FAMU with his feature debut A NIGHT TOO YOUNG (Příliš mladá noc). A Czech-Slovenian co-production set in a small apartment in an even smaller Czech town explores the zone between childhood and adulthood. The film was distributed in Czech Republic, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Slovakia and Slovenia. After the successful premiere in the Forum section of the 2012 Berlinale, the film was invited to numerous international festivals, winning several awards, including the Czech Film Critics' Award for the Discovery of the Year.

In 2015, he finished his second feature FAMILY FILM (Rodinný film), a co-production of five countries with the support of Media and Eurimages. It tells a story of a husband and a wife who set sail across the ocean, leaving their two children to explore the freedom of being home alone. The boat goes under, and so does the family. A dog, stuck on a desert island, is their only hope. The film premiered at San Sebastian IFF in New Directors Competition. It received the Award for Best Artistic Contribution at Tokio IFF and other awards.
